History

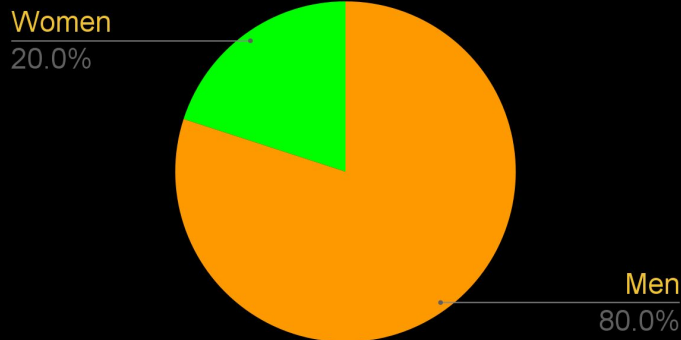

- Starting in 2017 years ago, Voxxed Athens managed to gather more than 450 people from Greece and Europe and in 2018 we welcomed more than 550 people from 17 different countries. 2019 was a blast with more than 700 people and in 2022, after 3 years of inactivity due to the pandemic we welcomed more than 900 people.
- Since, 2023, the event was rebranded under the umbrella of Devoxx conferences and this year, Devoxx Greece's third edition is expecting more than 1400 attendees.
- Addressing developers, team leaders, engineering managers, devops engineers, Devoxx Greece helps all the people that wish to get informed about the latest trends and take a deep dive into cutting-edge technologies, frameworks and programming languages.
- Voxxed Athens started as a one-day event and now Devoxx Greece is a 3-days event with 4 parallel rooms.

LAUNCHED IN 2001

Devoxx (previously known as JavaPolis) was founded by Stephan Janssen. Devoxx is a series of tech events organised by local community groups. Our mantra is "Content is King", as a result these events see both internationally renowned speakers and local rock stars.

LOCAL COMMUNITIES

Devoxx is spearheaded and supported by local communities. This means each event retains a unique regional flavour, whilst being part of the overall Devoxx movement. A spirit of openness, community, killer content and super-low priced tickets underpin the Devoxx philosophy.

DEVELOPERS-CENTRIC

Topics covered at Devoxx fall under the same radar as Voxxeddays.com, including: Server Side Java, Java Language, Cloud and Big Data, Web & HTML, Mobile, Programming Languages, Architecture & Security, Methodology, Culture and Future Technologies.

It holds events in Belgium, France, UK, Poland, Ukraine, Morocco and now in Greece.
